

Asia in Western Fiction

Established in the belief that imperialism as a cultural phenomenon had as significant an effect on the dominant as it did on the subordinate societies, the Studies in Imperialism series seeks to develop the new socio-cultural approach which has emerged through cross-disciplinary work on popular culture, media studies, art history, the study of education and religion, sports history and childrens literature. The cultural emphasis embraces studies of migration and race, while the older political, and constitutional, economic and military concerns are never far away. It incorporates comparative work on European and American empire-building, with the chronological focus primarily, though not exclusively, on the 19th and 20th centuries, when these cultural exchanges were most powerfully at work. Tracing the depiction of Asia in novels and other works of Western fiction, this volume describes and analyzes the common themes, stereotypes and cliches that have contributed to the Western understanding, and misunderstanding, of Asian life. Chapters examine the Western literary treatment of India, the Himalayas, China, Hong Kong, Japan, Indonesia, Vietnam and the Philippines. The text addresses the evolution of Western literary perceptions for the entire Asian region and offers insights into racial and cultural stereotyping, as well as the popular culture of imperialism. It includes listings of novels and short stories about Asia which have been written or translated into English.
